Academics:

Courses are taught in English and designed for upper-level undergraduates (3rd-4th year). Some DIS programs also admit graduate students. At DIS, you build your own curriculum. You pick a core course from among the 14 different programs on offer, and, following that, you freely select any electives from among the more than 100 courses taught at DIS as long as you meet individual course prerequisite and there are no scheduling conflicts. Unique among European study abroad programs, DIS places significant emphasis on study tours as a fully integrated component of the academic program.

Courses and Credits:

Semester program students must take at least 12 credits and may take up to 18, including no more than five 3-credit classes (or three 3-credit and one 6-credit class).

Note: A Danish language course is required.
