CSI Data Center Access Policies

Entrance to the data center is protected by two sets of double doors that are always locked. Only staff members of the Office of Information Technology with a need to service or utilize the equipment in 2A-314 have a key.

The area between the two sets of doors is used to distribute output to the user community. When an individual requires access to the distribution room they alert the staff member whose office is in the data center by using the camera-phone outside the first entrance. The operator can see who is requesting access and can speak with them. When clearance is granted the operator can open the door electronically and then insure the user only examines and takes the appropriate output.