Minors in Business and Economics

The School of Business at the College of Staten Island is committed to excellence in teaching, research, and service. The School offers a rigorous business education to foster the intellectual growth and enhance the career advancement of students from culturally and academically diverse backgrounds.

All degree programs provide a broad foundation of business knowledge and skills as well as in-depth understanding of one or more business disciplines including Accounting, Economics, Finance, Information Management, International Business, Management, and Marketing.

Through coursework and internships, students develop into critical and ethical thinkers who will make strong, life-long contributions to their organizations and communities. The dedication of the School of Business to teaching excellence is supported by a strong commitment to research and scholarship which advances business knowledge and contributes to the academic community.
The School of Business at the College of Staten Island offers seven minors in a variety of disciplines, all of which are open to students pursuing any baccalaureate major.

In just a few courses, a Minor in a Business field can enhance your academic experience at the College, add dimension to degrees outside of Business, open new areas of interest and opportunity, and make you more competitive in the workplace.
